

The meaning of sister

I am Ali, 14 years old and unfortunately no sister. I'm confused by people who have sisters and treat them so bad, because if you lost her you won't survive in this world without her.

anyway 8 years ago I went to Saudi Arabia  to see my grandfather and my family. I didn't know anyone so my father introduced me to his cousins. Luckily they're at my age. We got used to play together every day. We have a fun past I truly wish that I can see it again. And for 3 years I never saw them or hear about them. But luckily 4 weeks ago I have finally met them spend some time with them like the past. Until my father came around and said "You should not talk to them anymore because you're older now" I got so shocked. and I said "what about the years we spent together the moments that we shared. Dad are you trying to separate me from my sister who you couldn't bring?" I could not believe that I'm getting separated from my only sisters. A lot of years the we spent, a lot of time that we have fun, a lot of hours that we have played, would go that easy? I didn't stay there and do nothing.

I went to get their social media so I can talk to them every day. and every time I feel depressed, lonely, sad I got to them and somehow a single word from them changed that depression, sadness and loneliness to joy, happiness and secure. That is the feeling of happiness. the feeling of joy, the feeling of love and the feeling of trust. That is the feeling of having a sister. A sister who could do a lot for you. a sister who cares about you.

That is the meaning of sister. And I can't imagine a world without them around. because a world without a sister is no world to me.

I am Ali, 14 years old. I unfortunately have no sister. It confuses me how some boys who are blessed with sisters, treat them so bad and hurtful, because if you lose her you won't be able to survive in this tough world without her.

Eight years ago, I went to Saudi Arabia to see my family. I knew no one there, so my father introduced me to his cousins, luckily they were my age. We built fun memories. Unfortunately, I couldn't contact them for 3 years. But luckily, a month ago I've finally met them and spent some time with them like the good old days. Until my father came around and said, "You should not talk to them anymore because you're older now," I was shocked and I said, "What about the years we have spent together. Dad are you trying to separate me from my sister whom I never had?" I could not believe that I'm getting separated from my only sisters. All those years spent together, would they be forgotten easily? I couldn't stay there and do nothing.

Therefore, I went to get their social media accounts so I can talk to them every time when I feel depressed. I talk to them now, and somehow a single word from them changes that depression to happiness. Those are the feelings of having a sister. A sister who could do a lot for you. A sister who cares about you, loves you, and trusts you.

This is the meaning of sister. And I can't imagine a world without a sister's kindness, because a world without a sister is no world to me.
